

Author Bio

Jan Maxwell is a freelance writer whose work has appeared on the web and in print publications such as Northern Virginia Magazine and Experience.

She spent eighteen years as a pre-employment screener, verifying the information that applicants provided on their job applications. During that time, she saw many qualified individuals fail to get hired because the information on their applications had holes and discrepancies or was impossible to verify.